OUTLOOK

Short term outlook

- Tripoli is likely to remain calm in the short term. Pro-GNC militia has left the city making armed clashes less likely.
- BDB fighters that have moved north from Jufra are likely to be targeted by LNA forces. This could lead to escalations and tensions between the LNA and BAM/GNA forces in northern Libya.
- The LNA continues its assault against Sabri and Suq Al-Hout in Benghazi. Defensive IEDs, extensive debris and tunnels are expected to complicate the advance.

Medium to long term outlook

- The plans for Zintani militia and IDPs to return to Tripoli could increase tensions within the city in the coming weeks. Tripoli-based militias have already issued warnings against armed groups returning to the area.
- The political outlook remains unclear in the long term. A series of meetings in early May led to hopes that political breakthroughs might be made. However, clashes in the Southern region between the LNA and GNA aligned troops have set the process back. It remains hopeful Fayeze al-Sarraj's visit to the White House later this month might provide some motivation to achieve progress before the visit.
- The LNA now controls much of the east, south and central region. The addition of Jufra Airbase to the LNA's growing list of assets provides a significant increase in reach for the group. As BDB forces move north towards Bani Waleed, Sirte and Misrata it is likely that LNA strikes will follow, with the LNA potentially trying to take control of territory around Bani Waleed in the future.
- IS fighters are regrouping in Libya. Possible activity has been reported in Sabratah, Abu Grain and the area of Bani Waleed. Small groups are also thought to be establishing a presence in remote southern areas of Libya.

SIGNIFICANT EVENTS

Governance

- The head of UNSMIL, Martin Kobler, has indicated that he will soon be replaced. There has been no official statement yet on the identity of his replacement.
- Saif Gaddafi, the son of former leader Muammar Gaddafi, was released from prison in Zintan. His lawyer has indicated that he will have a key part to play in Libya in the future. The ICC has demanded that Gaddafi be re-arrested and surrendered to the international courts for trial.
- A UN Panel of Experts has published a 299-page report on Libya, reviewing the current situation in Libya and evidencing allegations of possible breaches of the arms embargo.
- The UN Security Council has extended its maritime interdiction operation, aimed at enforcing the arms embargo, for another year.
- The leader of the HCS has been named on a terrorist list, produced by the HoR. This raises further challenges for future peace agreements.
- Libyan social media users have expressed anti-Italian sentiment over what appears to be a satirical posting, by the Italian embassy in Libya, on the subject of terrorist lists produced by the HoR. The Italian embassy later retracted the posting and issued an apology.

Security

- There has been a general decrease in kinetic activity across all regions this week. This is not necessarily indicative of a long-term reduction of the threat throughout Libya. However, increased dominance of the southern region by the LNA and of Tripoli by the pro-GNA militia has led to some stabilization of these areas in the short term.
- A large VBIED has detonated in Benghazi, targeting the local Mayor. The Mayor was not hurt, but six people were injured in the blast.
- The LNA has ordered that the Abu Baker Sediq Brigade in Zintan, previously responsible for guarding Saif Gaddafi, be disbanded and amalgamated into the LNA Western Region Command.

16 June 2017

- The LNA has increased operations in Sabri, taking control of a headquarters building in the Sabri area.

Oil and gas

- Sharara Oilfield has reopened following two days of protests.
- The NOC and oil producer Wintershall has agreed on a deal which should see oil production in Libya increase in the coming months.
- The NOC has warned the eastern government against illegal oil exportation after it threatened to block Glencore from operations, due to Qatari links.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

Governance

Saif Gaddafi released from prison

On June 09, Saif al-Islam Gaddafi, the son of the deposed former leader Muammar Gaddafi, was released from custody in Zintan. Gaddafi originally received the death sentence in 2015 but was released under an amnesty law issued by the HoR in 2016. However, he is still wanted by the International Criminal Court (ICC), who subsequently demanded that he be handed over for trial.

UN developments

It has been a busy reporting period for the UN in Libya. Towards the end of last week, the head of UNSMIL provided a full update on progress in Libya and the challenges ahead. This was followed by a UN Panel of Experts report on Libya’s international arms embargo, which received significant media coverage primarily over alleged breaches from the United Arab Emirates (UAE). There was an also apparent confirmation that the head of UNSMIL, Martin Kobler, would soon be leaving his position, raising speculation of who might replace him in the role.

Dutch national released from custody

A Dutch national was released from custody earlier this week and has returned to the Netherlands. On June 12, the Dutch Ambassador to Libya, Eric Strating tweeted: “Yvonne Snitjer, who was arrested in Libya, has left the country.” News reports have confirmed that Snitjer was held by the Rada Special Deterrence Forces for taking photographs and videos of recent clashes in Tripoli.
